

Society of Undergraduate Mathematics Students

Description

SUMS is a newly formed student organization that aims to promote the exploration of extracurricular mathematics. We host a variety of events, such as talks about different areas of mathematics, workshops on how to use math-related software, as well as social events to promote interdisciplinary relationships.

Since our events have a quantitative and analytical flavor, we would like to reach out and extend an open invitation to students and faculty in this department to attend any of these events and get involved in club activities!

Going forward, we hope that these events can serve as a bridge between departments, hopefully leading to even more exciting talks and workshops in the future.
